

Williams Worldwide Television reveals its new website.

SANTA MONICA, CA - October. 26, 2004 – As Williams Worldwide Television (WWTV) enters into its 13th year of business, the company celebrates its continued success with the launching of a new website.

The new site reflects WWTV’s continued commitment to bring top products and the best service to the global arena and will serve as a great resource for clients and industry professionals.

“As our clients will see, WWTV is truly an international company, staffed with an international crew of multi-cultural backgrounds that understands the international marketplace. The new site presents numerous business opportunities to suppliers, distributors, TV networks and inventors alike – all of whom we work with and consider our partners,” says Osania Del Rio, Product Manager of WWTV.

Williams Worldwide Television was the first company to bring U.S. infomercial products to the global arena. Almost 13 years later, WWTV continues to be the leader in both its core services: International Distribution and International TV Media.